

Public Works Board Planning To Employ 600 Men Here Soon

400 New on Payroll and Number to Be Increased—Midweek Collection of Garbage to Be Completed—Plan Culvert Under Island Dock Causeway—Other Matters Before Board.

That the Board of Public Works planning to increase its street crew to 600 men was brought out in the regular monthly meeting of the board held in the office of Mayor Eugene B. Carey in the city hall Tuesday evening. For the past two weeks the board has had over 400 men on the payroll. The board is using the stagger system with its men working them one week on and one week off. The board also planned to save $3,000 a year in the cost of garbage collections by omitting the midweek collections during the period from October 1 to April 1. Ralph Gregory, who was recently appointed a member of the board in the place of E. E. Fessenden, whose term had expired, attended the first board meeting that evening. The board was over an hour in getting started as it held an executive session before the regular meeting.

Claims Rejected

The board on the advice of Corporation Counsel Chris J. Flanagan rejected three claims against the city. The first two claims were filed by Mrs. W. Sapp of 55 East Pier street and John Soss of 54 East Pier street, and were to recover damages for removal of their cellars being flooded during the exceptional heavy rain storm of August 27 of this year. The corporation counsel held that the city was not liable for damages.

The other claim had been filed by George Zellmer of 27 Hudson street, who said that while parking his car on Henry street his tire came in contact with a projecting curbstone, damaging the tire. This claim was also rejected.

Granted Concession

Joseph Fallon who has had the restaurant concession at Forsyth Park the past summer applied for the concession for next season and stated he had gone to some expense in erecting a building on the grounds. The board favored the application and Mr. Fallon will again have the concession in that park next season.

Complained of Buses

The Leo Grogan estate wanted the board to take some action regarding the big Greyhound buses and others damaging the curbing in front of the property in making the turn at the street corner. The matter was referred to the street committee.

Plan Big Culvert

The board is considering the project of installing a big culvert under the Island Dock causeway to permit a flow of water on both sides of the road. A number of years ago there was open water between the Island Dock and the mainland but about 1922 it was filled in and a road constructed.

Mr. Randerson, who recently had the contract for dredging the sewer outlets in the Roundout creek, submitted a bid of $4,855 to construct this proposed culvert. He would build it of Armo pure ingot iron. Two representatives of the Armo concern were present with samples of the type of material to be used in building the culvert. The same material was used in building the big culvert at Kerkhouson recently.

After discussing the matter Mr. Randerson was asked to submit a bid for supplying the material and supervising the installation while the board planned to furnish the labor from the list of the city's unemployed men.

Mr. Randerson said that plan was agreeable to him and that the board would hear from him shortly.

Accept Murphy Street

The board on the advice of the corporation counsel voted to accept the deed to Murphy street which had been offered to it recently. Murphy street is the street located under the Washington avenue viaduct.

Garbage Collection

Mayor Carey said that a saving of $3,000 a year could be made in the cost of garbage collections by omitting the usual midweek collections of garbage in the residential districts. The plan was approved by the board and goes into effect the first of October and continues in effect until the first of April.

Linderman Avenue Notes

Residents of Linderman avenue petitioned to have the holes in that street filled as the road was in very bad condition. The request was referred to the street superintendent.

At the August meeting of the board a resident on Ardley street asked to have a street light discontinued. Last night other residents petitioned that the light remain and not be discontinued. It was referred to the lighting committee.

Other Matters

The Island Dock shipyard filed a claim against the city for $333.44 for damages to its water line at the time the sewer outlet at Ravine street was dredged. The claim was referred to the corporation counsel.

To Close City Parks

It was decided to close the city parks for the season and the superintendent was instructed to have the city water shut off and the glassware removed from the lighting equipment and stored until the parks reopened next season.

Milk Dealer Requests Investigation Into Dairyman's Threat

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 25 (AP)—A request for a state investigation of efforts of dairy farmers to fix higher prices for milk was the answer today of a Brooklyn milk dealer to the threat of upstate dairy farmers to strike for higher prices.

Attorney General John J. Bennett had before him a telegram received yesterday from the Eisenberg Farms, Inc., of Brooklyn, charging that milk farmers were ready to cut off the firm's milk supply unless the latter yielded to a scale of higher prices.

The company said the movement was "concentrated against our firm to eliminate competition," and it asked Mr. Bennett to "please investigate."

In reply Mr. Bennett dispatched a letter to Eisenberg Farms saying that dairymen's associations are exempt under the general business law of the state from provisions outlawing efforts to fix prices and restrain competition. The attorney general added, however:

"If those against whose actions you complain do not come within the scope of this exemption I would appreciate it if you will furnish us with all of the facts relative thereto."

At Adams Center

last week a dairymen's committee named Eisenberg farms as one of three Brooklyn concerns which had not adhered to a higher price scale recently instituted by the Dairymen's League. The farmers warned that they would refuse to deliver milk to the United Milk Products Corporation unless the Brooklyn companies fell in line.

The corporation promised to exert its efforts to strengthen prices. The farmers also said their representatives in New York would "check" the progress of the price strengthening effort.

Former U. S. Senator J. S. Williams Dead

Yazoo City, Miss., Sept. 28 (AP)—John Sharp Williams, former United States Senator from Mississippi, and one of the south's outstanding statesmen, died at his home near Denton at midnight.

Senator Williams had been ill for a long time but recently had rallied and seemed to be in much better health. Several members of his family were at his bedside when he died.

Among survivors are his children, Kit Williams of Memphis, Mrs. Edwin R. Holmes, Yazoo City, Mrs. Sallie Bunkley, Newport, R. W. Williams, Nashville, and Allison Williams of Atlanta.

Williams' political philosophy was known to every school child in Mississippi and neighboring states. He was a brilliant orator, whose tongue had a sting that made him a scourge to opposition.

His break with James K. Vardaman was the beginning of one of the most intense and dramatic political feuds that the south ever knew.

Vardaman was himself a master of oratory and he and Williams broke over issues and served together in the Senate. Williams was a staunch follower and advisor of Woodrow Wilson and Vardaman was an opponent of the war president on issues paramount at that time.

After his retirement from the Senate, Williams—"the grand old man of Mississippi"—went to his plantation near here and said he was through with politics. But every now and then, he spoke a word for his party.

Federal Agencies Rush Relief Plans

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—New loans of over $13,000,000 by the Reconstruction Corporation were accompanied today by other governmental moves designed to hasten federal relief activities.

A technical obstacle in the way of spending the $100,000,000 allotment for public buildings provided by the relief act was removed by Comptroller General McCarl. He ruled the 10 per cent reduction ordered in expenditures by the national economy act must apply to individual projects costs rather than the lump-sum appropriation.

The treasury already has announced allocations of the money for buildings costing more than $100,000 and will begin to open bids for sites next week. Department officials expect lower construction costs largely to compensate for the 10 per cent economy cuts without affecting plans for individual projects.

Reconstruction Corporation directors were agreed on the purchase of $12,000,000 per cent bond issued by the state of Louisiana and the Public Belt Line Railroad Commission of New Orleans for the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi river just above that Gulf port.

The navy department meanwhile planned a $4,000,000 expenditure at Boston, Philadelphia and New York navy yards for building three destroyers. Secretary Adams said yesterday the outlays was intended both to supply the need for the ships and to help relieve unemployment.

Justice H. J. Hinman Nominated to Supreme Court at Convention

Dairymen's Threat Court at Convention

Judge Alden Chester nominated Justice Harold J. Hinman for re-election at the Judicial Convention—Judges Cochran and Hasbrouck Seconded.

Judge Alden Chester nominated Justice Harold J. Hinman for re-election to the Supreme Court at the Judicial Convention for the Third Judicial District held at the Albany County Court House this morning.

Judge Chester retired from the bench 14 years ago on reaching the constitutional age limit of 70 years and Justice Hinman was chosen as his successor.

In his remarks in making such nomination, Judge Chester referred in detail to the service of Judge Hinman for six years in the Legislature and also as a member of the Constitutional Convention, and as Deputy Attorney General where he became the First Deputy and principal advisor of the Governor and the other state officers, and he also argued many cases for the state in the Appellate Courts.

Served Faithfully

He also referred to his distinguished service for nearly 14 years which he was and now is a member of the Appellate Division, and that during all that time he had taken a part in any political activities, and nomination was made that in every county of his district public sentiment in both parties strongly favored his re-nomination and re-election.

He was designated to Appellate Division first by Governor Miller in 1921 and redesignated by Governor Smith and by the present Governor Roosevelt, both Democrats.

Judge Chester also referred quite at length to the disposition in the state and throughout the country for both parties to renominate a judge whose judicial service merited a continuance in office.

On this subject he said: "When President Hoover, a Republican, appointed Benjamin N. Cardozo, a Democrat, as a Justice of the Supreme Court at Washington, his appointment was received with general approval by the press and people of the entire country. When a former Republican president appointed Justice White, a Democrat, Chief Justice of that court, that appointment was received with like approval. Many other like appointments in the Federal Courts might be mentioned."

Throughout this state and in this judicial district this principle has prevailed for many years. Here when the first full terms of Justice Chase, Cochrane, Howard and myself, all Republicans, expired, the Democratic Judicial Conventions in the District endorsed the nominations, and each of these endorsements received the general approval of the press and people of the district. There can be no doubt that this system has gone a great ways to give the people confidence in our courts and in keeping them free from political influence.

Merited Endorsement

No justice who ever served in this district more richly merited such endorsement than Justice Hinman, and I trust that the gentlemen who have a controlling influence in Democratic Conventions here will have the wisdom to follow the examples and the principle I have mentioned.

It is a great pleasure for me to come to this convention and it is the first convention of any character in thirty-seven years to move the renomination of so worthy a man and a judge as Justice Hinman, whose term of office expires with the end of this year."

The Hon. A. V. S. Cochrane (former Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division and now retired) seconded the nomination of Supreme Court Justice Harold J. Hinman for re-election, spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the Convention, I am here today in the interest of a nonpartisan judiciary. It is more than 31 years since I have attended any political convention as a delegate and only the present exigency could induce me to be here in that capacity. There is a wise tradition that a judge who has served acceptably a term of 14 years should be continued on the bench. Democrats and Republicans alike have recognized and acted upon the wisdom of that principle.

Reasons For Endorsing

What are the reasons why a judge at the expiration of his 14 year term should be endorsed by both political parties? Briefly they are three fold. First and least important perhaps it is due to a man who has severed himself from all political and professional activities, who has consecrated himself unreservedly to the performance of his judicial duties, who has denied himself the opportunities which would otherwise be his for pecuniary profits, who has known neither political friend or foe while on the bench and who has given 14 of the best years of his life to the service of the state, that he should be continued on the bench which by his high ideals and devoted services he has honored.

Second and more important than any consideration due the judge is the fact that the state should not be deprived of the services of such a man. Of course another may gradually develop into the same degree of efficiency as that of the retiring judge, but it requires time and hard work. The efficiency and legal learning and judicial outlook and familiarity with legal principles as applicable to a given state of facts all of which come only from experience.

Many Thousands Are Left Destitute and Homeless—Property Damage Estimated to Run Into Many Millions of Dollars.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Sept. 28 (AP)—Deaths from the hurricane which struck Puerto Rico early yesterday mounted into the hundreds today as reconstruction crews cleared away the debris while the storm roared on toward Santo Domingo and Haiti.

Governor James R. Beverley placed the number of dead at 200 last night and the injured at 1,000, but he said this estimate undoubtedly would be revised upward.

In the meantime, reports from Santo Domingo, before communications were closed down last night, said the storm destroyed a number of houses at San Pedro de Macoris, about 50 miles from there. It reached Santo Domingo at 8:30 p. m., but no damage was done up to that hour.

Santo Domingo was struck two years ago by one of the most disastrous hurricanes in the history of the Caribbean. The city was practically wiped out and over 3,000 were killed.

(Reports from Havana late last night quoted authorities at the national observatory as saying the storm passed over or near Santo Domingo, moving northward at a rate of 12 miles an hour. It was reported to reach the vicinity of Port au Prince, Hayti, at 7 a. m., and would then begin endangering shipping off the coast of Oriente Province, Cuba. If its path continued unvaried, observatory officials said, it would pass over the vicinity of Colon Straits as it neared the Cuban coast.)

Property Damage in Millions

Property damage in the wake of the storm here, officials estimated, would run into many millions of dollars. The heaviest damage was to the coffee plantations which had just begun to bear again this year after having been flattened by the disastrous storm of four years ago. The citrus fruit crop, worth about $7,000,000, would be a total loss, observers said.

Deaths In Hurricane Flying Squadron Ends Public Hearing

Mount Into Hundreds, Series of Meetings on On Tax Ordinance Tuesday: 50 Present Here Monday Night

The Flying Squadron, working in the interest of prohibition, closed its series of meetings in Kingston at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church Monday night when an audience of approximately 50 men and women listened to Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago, president of the Flying Squadron Foundation, who said there is less drunkenness today than prior to the Eighteenth Amendment.

Mr. Stewart began his address with a reference to what he said was one of the common facts of human experience, namely, that the presence of the audience and himself resulted from the knowledge that alcoholic liquors produce intoxication. He said:

"If such liquors were as harmless as milk there would be no drink problem to consider. This generation was forced to a study of the question. The drunkard can have no place in our high speed age."

"With that realization the American people moved toward the destruction of the liquor traffic. It became their clear conviction that no business, the fruit of which was drunkenness, should have the protection of the law."

"That conviction was registered in the Eighteenth Amendment, which put the liquor traffic under sentence of death and conferred upon the federal government, concurrently with the states, the necessary power for its execution."

This, according to the speaker, must stand as the verdict of the people unless, and until, they change it by legal, constitutional action.

Tells of Objections

Mr. Stewart then proceeded to the discussion of objections made by the wets to the policy for which the amendment makes provision.

First came the consideration of the claim that there is more drinking and drunkenness than when the licensed saloon held sway. Calling attention to the absence of any proof to that effect, the speaker proposed, for the sake of the argument, to treat it as true.

"Where does that leave us?" he asked. He insisted that the claim of the opponents of prohibition that men are moved to make, transport, sell, buy, and drink intoxicating liquors for the sake of defying prohibition, has no valid support. He denied that men normally shape their course by what is enjoined upon or forbidden them.

"If that be true," said the speaker, "we could end the depression in a week. Hard times would disappear if everybody would, tomorrow, begin buying the commodities offered for sale by the merchants of the country. This they could be made to do by a law prohibiting such purchases, if people are moved by any such principle as the Wets profess to believe manifests itself as prohibition."

Mr. Stewart reinforced his argument by calling attention to the absence of drunkards from public places such as railroad stations, hotels, street corners, buses and trains. So plain is this, he asserted, that the Wets do not dare to propose the restoration of the saloon.

His Experience

Mr. Stewart added that over a period of 12 days, during a recent trip from Indianapolis to New Hampshire, he saw only one drunkard, and that during 259 days traveling on a previous tour he witnessed only seven intoxicated persons. Prior to the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment, he said he saw in a place not more than 1,000 miles from Kingston on Sunday afternoon, not less than 15 drunkards in one hour in the vicinity of a railroad station and that the persons were so intoxicated that the conductor would not allow one of them to board his train.

In much the same manner he denied the charge of the Wets that the younger generation is given over to drink and its accompanying abominations. He ridiculed the proposal of the Wets to relieve the young people of the restraint of the Eighteenth Amendment, while at the same time putting them under the restrictions of government manufacture and sale by which they are to find themselves in the class not permitted to buy.

Answering the charge that prohibition has caused a crime wave, he cited the fact that, if there be any such thing, it is world-wide, and could be due only to a world-wide cause. Nation-wide prohibition for the United States cannot logically be assigned as the cause of a crime wave in England, France, or Germany.

Other objections were disposed of which traced the way for the consideration of a plan for the union of all friends of the Eighteenth Amendment by a nation-wide enrollment and by local organizations. The speaker pictured the different national dry organizations as fractions of the whole. He proposed that they be united by addition, which could be brought about only by means of a common denominator which is found in a general enrollment.

He pledged the Flying Squadron Foundation to a campaign, not to end on election day but to be carried through the next administration of United States.

Mr. Stewart and he pledged to support to any new political party, choosing to cast his vote for any dry candidate.

O. U. A. M. State Convention Finished

After a short and warm session which was held at the Hotel New York, the O. U. A. M. State Convention finished its business and adjourned for the session next year.

It was after six o'clock Tuesday afternoon when the state convention of the O. U. A. M. State Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. finished its business and adjourned for the session next year. There was considerable discussion on several matters pertaining to the government of the state during the afternoon session. Among the propositions defeated was a change in the law in regard to membership in the order. There are a number of honorary members in Kingston, among them are Collector Philip Elting, Emer E. Swart, a prominent member and worker in the order, a member of Charles DeWitt Council, who is honored by having the Past Master's honors conferred on him. This was a high tribute to the work Mr. Swart has done for the order as a member of state committee, as a state trustee and as a state treasurer. It is the highest honor conferred but once previously. The delegates generally and by resolution expressed their appreciation of the efforts put forth by the members of Charles DeWitt Council for their entertainment and the reception given them by city officials and people of Kingston. The opinion was expressed that it was one of the best and most enjoyable sessions of the State Council ever held. The halloting for officers of the council for the coming year resulted as follows: State councillor, Cyrus M. Knapp, Spring Valley; vice councillor, Conrad Knott, Brooklyn; conductor, Robert H. Wesel of New York; guardian, Daniel Minor, Schenectady; inside sentinel, Stewart Neeb, Massena; L. I. outside sentinel, Andrew Schmitt of Floral Park; trustees—three years, Adolph Schneider, Syracuse; two years, John Milliken, Newburgh. Watertown was selected as the place for the convention next year, receiving 112 votes; Syracuse being second choice with 33 votes.

Grocery Bill Case Continued Today

An adjournment was taken Tuesday afternoon in the Joy-Hulsair contract action which has been on trial in county court since Monday. Judge Shufeldt, who appears for plaintiff, was engaged and a recess was taken until this morning.

At the Tuesday session the books kept by the late Clarence Kelly were offered and accepted in evidence. The witness was called and testified that he had traded at the Kelly store for many years and the books of his account had always been accurate and corresponded with his own account of his dealings. Homer Van der, clerk at the Kelly store, identified the books and testified that they were the books of the firm and that Clarence Kelly had kept them. The action is one brought by Mr. Joy, executor of the will of the late James Kelly, North Front street grocer, against Louis Hulsair, Jr., to collect an alleged balance on a grocery bill which appears on the Kelly books. Mr. Hulsair denies he owes the bill and claims he has not only paid it but had loaned the firm money. He seeks by counter claim to recover the money he loaned Clarence Kelly to pay firm bills. Robert J. Howard appears for Mr. Hulsair.

Rev. Waldo Involved In Accident Tuesday

Ingersoll, Ont., Sept. 28 (AP)—The Rev. David P. Waldo, Kingston, N. Y., is to appear in police court here on a charge of reckless driving following an accident three miles west of here yesterday in which the son of a London, Ont., minister and his family were involved. Police allege Mr. Waldo's car crashed into the rear of one driven by Ralph D. Walden, son of the Rev. William A. Walden, pastor of Emmanuel Avenue United Church, London, who with Mrs. Walden and another son were passengers in the car. Mr. Waldo was travelling with his wife, who suffered a fractured arm and her sister, Mrs. B. Coates, who suffered from shock and bruises. The Londoners escaped with minor injuries. Provincial police stated the London car had stopped on the highway to allow a flock of turkeys to pass when Mr. Waldo's machine collided with it.

EDUCATORS INTERESTED IN RELIEF COMMITTEE WORK

September 16, 1932. Mrs. Frederick Snyder, President, Relief Aid Committee, Kingston, N. Y. My dear Mrs. Snyder: I have the pleasure of informing you as president of the relief committee that the teachers and all the employees of the Board of Education of Kingston are deeply interested in the work your organization is undertaking for the alleviation of the needy children of our city. These employees have voluntarily pledged a substantial sum which will be sent to your treasurer, Mr. D. N. Matthews, in the near future. Very truly yours, B. C. VAN INGEN, Superintendent of Schools.

MOST SPECTACULAR OF U. S. AGENCIES

Bureau of Investigation is Least Advertised.

One of the least advertised and yet most dramatic and spectacular of all federal agencies is the bureau of investigation of the United States Department of Justice. To most casual citizens the bureau is just a name, if it is known at all. The credit for famous cases in which the clinching evidence against an international thief, a defaulter, a confidence man or a confidence man on the high seas was furnished by an agent from the bureau is generally given the police. The bureau agents, credited as being the best detectives in the United States and American possessions, avoid the limelight. Although every agent is trained in law and accounting their work is highly secretive. Publicity is avoided as is contrast to the courting of publicity by most investigating bodies.

Field is Broad. Some of the most dramatic crimes, made famous in play and story, come under the jurisdiction of this body. Their field includes crimes on the high seas, violation of the national banking and bankruptcy laws, thefts from interstate shipments, bribery, crimes on Indian reservations, escaped federal prisoners, civil rights and domestic violence, and all others not assigned to a specific agency.

In two fields, especially, the Department of Justice agency is the protector of civil rights and liberties. As a co-ordinating policy agency the bureau aids in the capture and conviction of thousands of state and national criminals. At Washington the most complete fingerprint bureau in the world is maintained for the aid of all police agencies.

Not only are the prints of federal violators maintained but the prints of any fugitive wanted by any police department for any crime from leaving the scene of an accident to robbery with a gun are kept. A free "posting" system, by which any police chief can have the fingerprints of a fugitive placed on file is maintained. The prints of every arrested man is checked each time against the files and co-operation given the corresponding police chief.

The arrest and conviction of Gene Elms for murder is a case illustrative of this work. On February 7, 1931, the bureau received from the police department at Tulsa, Okla., the fingerprints of Gene Elms with a notation that he was wanted for the murder of a police officer. Checking the files it was ascertained that two days previously a fingerprint card was received from St. Paul, Minn., stating that one Raymond Parker had been arrested for investigation. The two prints were identical and Elms was tried on the murder charge in Oklahoma and sentenced to life imprisonment. Another murder suspect was arrested through the same system as a result of having the scene of an automobile accident.

The other field in which the bureau comes most in contact with business and civic leaders is in the investigation of all bankruptcy frauds. Practically the only protection legitimate business has against the confidence man and swindler who avails himself of the loopholes in the bankruptcy laws, the bureau investigators are constantly busy checking the schedules of bankrupt petitioners. Thousands of dollars in hidden assets have been returned through this agency.

Embezzling Cashier. All violations of the national banking act come under the jurisdiction of the bureau. One of the most noted Chicago cases of recent years was the arrest and conviction of John E. Malloy, assistant cashier of the Lawrence Avenue National bank. Malloy misappropriated funds and showed up in Milwaukee, claiming to have been the victim of a holdup in the bank. Through the reconstruction of practically the entire ledger system of the bank his story was proven false and Malloy was sentenced four years in prison and fined $5,000 on a charge of making false entries and embezzling $50,000.

Investigation and search for the fugitive is never given up by the Department of Justice investigators. One of the longest successful searches ended in the arrest and conviction of Grover S. Elam, a bank cashier from the First National bank of Highland, Wis.

The bank failed in 1931 and an investigation by the bureau showed $10,000 unaccounted for. Elam was indicted, but because he was suffering from a bad gasoline burn a warrant was not served pending his recovery. In the meantime he disappeared. Special agents of the bureau of investigation instituted a search for him and a few weeks ago he was located in Chicago under the name of Albert E. Nagel and is being returned to Wisconsin for trial.

The bureau has been in existence for 24 years and comprises 22 field offices located throughout the United States and its possessions. In each office there is stationed a staff of trained investigators under the supervision of an investigator in chief. The national director of the bureau is J. Edgar Hoover, with the Chicago office being in charge of W. A. McGowan.

538 Cases on Calendar Of Supreme Court

Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock the October term of the supreme court will be convened at the court house with Judge F. Walter Bliss presiding. A grand and trial jury will be in attendance.

On Friday afternoon of this week at 2 o'clock the calendar of cases will be called and marked. At that time under the rule of the court a ready calendar will be made up of such cases as are ready to be heard. This calendar will be the day calendar to be taken up on the opening of court.

On the calendar this term are 538 cases of action. Twenty-one of the cases are preferred causes.

FEAR REVOLT AGAINST NEW STATE OF MANCHUKUO

Tokyo, Sept. 28 (AP)—Fear that a serious revolt against the new state of Manchukuo had broken out in western Heilongjiang province in Manchuria worried Japanese government officials today.

Communications with the western part of the huge northern province appeared to have broken down completely, it was said, after the Japanese consul telegraphed Tientsin, asking for help.

The consul said bands of Chinese highway guards had risen in rebellion and that a Japanese airplane which was sent out on a scouting expedition west of Tientsin failed to return.

The foreign office expressed the hope that Japanese consular representatives and residents of the section had taken refuge in Russian territory since the Soviet government had agreed to afford them protection in the event of trouble.

Officials said they were fearful, however, that a small group of Japanese "on special military duty" in the territory might have been killed.

BRAZILIAN JOAN OF ARC LEADS VOLUNTEERS IN WAR

Uberaba, Brazil, Sept. 28 (AP)—A Brazilian Joan of Arc, who doffed her white and flowing robes for the rough garb of a volunteer federal soldier, brandished the sword of battle today on the northern front, where the federal troops are fighting the Sao Paulo rebels.

She is the leader of a cult of several thousand men, women and children in the interior state of Goias, and she is leading a company of volunteers from her own group.

"Santa Ica," glorious saint, her followers call her. She won her fame with them by numerous reputed prophetic visions, by a claim of mental healing power and the ability to brew potions from herbs which achieved a reputation for curing various diseases.

She has always been a strong supporter of President Getulio Vargas, and when the rebellion in the southern state of Sao Paulo brought sharp fighting in the north she called for volunteers from among her followers.

KIWANIS OPPOSED TO FOREST PRESERVE LEASES

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 28 (AP)—New York Kiwanis are opposed to amending the state constitution to permit the leasing of forest preserves, states a resolution passed by delegates here yesterday at the final session of the district convention.

The resolutions says that the Kiwanis are "unalterably opposed to any action tending to commercialize our state parks or forest preserves." John W. Genesway of Malone was elected governor of the New York state district of Kiwanis at yesterday's session. E. D. De La Mater of Amsterdam was the only other candidate.

New Lieutenant governors elected were Thomas O'Brien of New York; Dr. E. K. Lee of Beacon; Lewis Stearns of Walden; S. Oles of Delhi; Henry McArthur of Brockport; Dr. George Caddick of Albany; E. L. O'Connell of Plattsburg and S. J. Toback of Flushing.

Martial Law in Havana, 4 Leaders Murdered

Decree Promulgated to Prevent Possible Reprials By Friends of Four Slain Men—Search For Slayers.

Havana, Sept. 28 (AP)—This city was under martial law today as police sought gunmen who yesterday murdered four of Cuba's prominent political leaders and inflicted fatal wounds upon a fifth, who died in the hospital today.

President Machado explained the decree of martial law was promulgated to prevent possible reprisals by friends of the four slain men.

Dr. Clemente Vazquez Bello, friend of Machado, president of the senate, and prospective candidate for the presidency of Cuba died in a rain of machine gun bullets from a passing automobile.

Shortly afterward, three brothers, political opponents of Dr. Vazquez Bello and the Machado regime were slain in their home. Investigators described their killing as an act of reprisal by friends of the dead senate chief.

Police were seeking a man named Agustin Alvarez, who they said, was the owner of the car which bore the machine gunners. They arrested the proprietor and an employee of the suburban garage where they said the auto was kept, but declined to say whether they had learned anything about the owner. In the car they found six rifles, four pistols, a revolver, and a quantity of ammunition.

Representative Miguel Angel Aguilar, who participated in the unsuccessful revolt against the Machado government in August, last year, was wounded four times in a third shooting.

The body of the late senate president will be taken to Santa Clara late today on a special train. It was announced, and the funeral will be held tomorrow, when his widow, daughter and brothers are expected to arrive from New York.

Police closed all roads leading out of Havana in the hope of capturing the slayers. Airplanes began a patrol of the coast looking for small boats in which they might try to escape.

Representative Aguilar told an investigating judge at the hospital, where his condition was said to be improving, that four persons he did not know called him to the door of his residence and while two of them talked to him the other two opened fire.

A servant at the Freyre brothers' home said three men rushed past him when he answered a knock at the door, asked where Dr. Freyre was, and then dashed upstairs. He heard a volley of shots, he said, and then a commotion in front of the house, indicating the departure of the assassins.

Hardening Alloy. "Stealing silver" is an alloy of silver and copper, containing ordinarily about 7 per cent of the base metal to give the requisite hardness.

Three Resign From British Cabinet

London, Sept. 28 (AP)—Three of the important Liberal and Labor members of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's eleven-month-old national cabinet resigned today following a disagreement over the tariff proposals approved at the recent imperial trade conference at Ottawa.

The three who resigned are Viscount Snowden of Ickneshaw, Lord Privy Seal, former Labor party leader, and two noted Liberals, Sir Herbert Samuel, home secretary and Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary for Scotland.

The resignations marked the first break in the national government, which was chosen from all three leading parties to meet the financial crisis faced by Great Britain last October.

The Liberal leaders and Viscount Snowden objected to the tariff proposals as incompatible with their free trade principles.

The cabinet met in a tense special session at 11 a. m. for final consideration of the threatened break, which has been foreseen for several days. The session lasted two hours.

The prime minister and a majority of the cabinet members declared the free traders' proposals to delay presentation of the Ottawa agreements "impracticable."

The three members immediately resigned and the cabinet adjourned until 2:30 p. m.

ROOSEVELT ENROUTE TO MEETING WITH NORRIS

Roosevelt special, en route to McCook, Neb., Sept. 28 (AP)—Refreshed by a night "ashore" in the resort center of Colorado Springs, at the foot of Pikes Peak, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential candidate, today was enroute to a meeting with the Republican Independent's leader, U. S. Senator George Norris at McCook.

The meeting with Norris, who has turned his back on President Hoover, to espouse the Roosevelt candidacy, will come a day after another Republican Independent, Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico, appeared on a platform at Lamy Junction with Roosevelt.

Roosevelt was greeted by a large crowd at Colorado Springs last night. Another crowd awaited him at a hotel, where he and his party spent the night. Flanked by Senators Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, Key Berman of Nevada, John C. Cohen of Georgia, and Colorado's new senator, Walter Walker, Roosevelt appeared on the balcony of the hotel and addressed the crowd.

Roosevelt repeated a declaration he has made several times during the campaign—that he was not "defecting" from the party, but against the leadership.

"There has been more clean, cold American thinking during this campaign than ever before," he commented. "Whoever was the election goes on November 3, I am sure it will be an intelligent election."

Harvest Tea Is Successful Affair

The Ulster Garden Club held its annual Harvest Tea Tuesday afternoon at the Governor Clinton Hotel under the chairmanship of Mrs. George Washburn. It was more than usually attractive this year because the display was held in the lounge and tea was served on the enclosed piazza at attractively decorated tables, presided over by Mrs. Fred Warren. A novel feature this year was a display of still life. Tables were arranged by different members of the club. They were formally judged by a committee composed of Willard Van Keuren, Mrs. Henry Dunbar and Miss Emily Hoyradt, according to artistic arrangement, originality, proportion and balance, harmony and distinction of composition with background and color scheme and condition of flowers, and a popular vote was also taken.

According to the judges the first prize was given to Number 5, a tubonium exhibited by Mrs. G. U. S. Quackenbush, the second prize to No. 14, an arrangement by Mrs. J. D. Schoonmaker, and the third prize to No. 15, an arrangement of Zinnias by Mrs. Girard Hotz.

In the popular vote the first general prize was given to No. 1, by Mrs. George Washburn; the second was a tie between No. 2 and No. 6, Mrs. Washburn's and one by Mrs. George Hutton and Miss Van Keuren, and the third prize was given to an arrangement of Tansy grass and Japanese lanterns by Mrs. Tappan.

For originality by popular vote the first prize was awarded No. 14, by Mrs. Schoonmaker; the second to No. 5, Mrs. Quackenbush; and the third was a tie between No. 6, Mrs. Carter's arrangement and No. 14.

DECLARES U. S. READY TO COOPERATE ON LIBERIA PLAN
Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—The United States today was declared by Secretary Stimson "ready to approve any practicable plan" for international supervision of Liberia's administration, but feels such cooperation would be futile without "an adequate grant of authority" by the African republic.

"The view of this government in respect to Liberia," Stimson said, "is simply that any official act there in behalf of the league of nations shall have sufficient assurance of support and authority from both Liberia and the league to make it worth while sending them."

The government's position was set forth by the secretary of state in a telegram last night to Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and W. H. B. Johnson, editor of "The Crisis," both of New York city.

Flying Squadron Ends Series Of Meetings

office seeker whether he be a Republican or Democrat.

Free Offering Taken. Following the meeting envelopes were distributed for free will contributions to the cause of sustaining prohibition and enrollments passed out among the audience. On them was printed the following: Believing in the Eighteenth Amendment and pledging myself to its support, I hereby apply for enrollment as a member of the Local Society for the Support of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The nominating committee composed of the Rev. John B. Staketer, chairman; the Rev. Mr. Brown and Dr. C. H. Cragin, was increased by two additional members Mrs. Elsie Pultz and Leslie Herring.

There was no more made to nominate any candidate to head the local prohibition society last night, but the committee is expected to select them in the near future.

A cordial invitation to attend its prohibition exhibit at 279 Fair street all next week was extended by the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Last night's meeting opened with the singing of the hymn, "Who is on the Lord's Side?" led by the Rev. A. S. Cole, pastor of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church and closed with the singing of "America."

FLOOR FIGHTS IN BOTH STATE CONVENTIONS

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 28 (AP)—Floor fights for the gubernatorial nomination await both the Democratic and Republican state conventions next week.

Friends of F. Truhee Davison, a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, served notice last night that they would insist upon submitting the name of their candidate to the convention delegates in opposition to William J. Donovan of Buffalo.

Their announcement, which was made through a source close to Mr. Davison, followed by a few hours of similar declaration by Edward J. O'Donnell, Albany county Democratic leader. O'Donnell said he would carry the name of Mayor John Bond Thayer, D. of Albany before the Democratic convention.

Against Davison, Governor Herbert H. Lehman.

CHAPTER 11
 TENDER THOUGHTS

JERVIS went standing down the stairs, and once outside the gates, turned into a field. He could have found his way blindfold, but out here, under the sky and away from the city, it was not so dark. The darkness lay above his head, and he was already prepared with stars. The moon had not yet risen.

As he walked, his thoughts cleared. If it was Nan who had saved his life ten years ago at the risk of her own, and if she had known this, their whole relation was on a different basis; it was profoundly affected—so profoundly, in fact, as to alter his entire point of view.

He went back to the stinging shock of Rosamund's defection on the eve of their marriage. He had believed then, and had since had this belief intensified, that it was a shameless and callous manoeuvre to supplant him as his grandfather's heir.

To counter this, he must be married by the date fixed in Ambrose Wear's will. Nan had stepped into the breach with her quiet proposal that they should marry as a matter of business. She had been very businesslike. She must have something for her trouble—a percentage. She had, in fact, put herself up for sale for ten thousand dollars. He had not known then that the money was for her sister, who was now on her way to Australia.

Jervis was aware that he himself had not bothered about being fair. By marrying Nan he spoiled Rosamund's dirty game, and that was all he had cared for at the time. In the last 24 hours he had experienced a disposition to turn his back on the events which had led up to his marriage. They made a background incompatible with Nan as he was beginning to know her.

F. F.'s story made it impossible to blot things out. He felt instead an overwhelming desire to know what had been at the back of Nan's mind when she proposed that business arrangement. He had set her down as a shrewd opportunist catching at a marriage above her hopes. But then, why not play her best card—why not show her fear and claim his gratitude?

The shrewd opportunist would surely have done this. And Nan, according to F. F., had hidden her trump card instead of playing it. She had hidden her parentage too. No opportunist worth the name would have neglected to claim Nigel Forsyth as a father. What had been in her mind?

Something glimmered among his thoughts like a will o' the wisp. It was a dancing point of light that turned a flickering gleam here and there and was gone. He would have married anyone, and picked her up anywhere. He had certainly been mad, and it was Nan who had stood between him and the abyss. The gleam touched that.

None of these things presented themselves to him in words. It could hardly be said that he recognized what the gleam showed him. His conscious thought had not greatly altered as yet. There was behind it a pressure which would compel it to alter.

Jervis turned and began to walk back by the way he had come. One thing at least he could now explain to his own satisfaction, and that was Nan's extraordinary obsession with regard to Robert Leonard. He didn't, of course, believe the story of Leonard coming down the cliff and passing the pool. That was nonsense—part of the obsession.

No—what had happened was quite obviously this—Nan had seen Leonard somewhere on the beach either that day or some other day. She had had a shock, and was feverish, and she had got Leonard mixed up with her fever. She had had a bad dream about Leonard and had tacked it on to the things that had really happened.

Let Leonard out. It explained everything perfectly. He got back to Wear to find the house dark except for a light in the hall. Much had happened since he had left. He got up to the hall and went up in the dark. As he passed Nan's door, he heard the thing of Nan's fall and a faint snoring sound. He said, "Lie down, Brant."

As he opened his own door, the sounds ceased. He put on his light and undressed. Before he got into bed he drew the curtains back, and fell asleep while he was wondering why moonlight made everything look so still.

He waked with a start, he did not know how much later. Then he heard a sound—Nan moving in Nan's room. Restless brute! But that wouldn't have waked him. He raised himself on his hand, and as he did so, he heard a choking cry and in a moment was out of bed and at the door between the two rooms. If it was bolted...

But it gave to his hand. He switched on the light, and saw Nan sitting up in bed under the crimson canopy, her eyes wide and blank with terror, and her lips parted in a gasping cry. Brant, with his forepaws on the bed, whined and licked frantically at her hair, her shoulder, her arm.

As the light went on, he growled, lunged round, dropped to the floor, and bounded to meet Jervis, thrusting at him with his head and making anxious sounds in his throat. Jervis bade him lie down, harshly. His first thought was that the dog had frightened Nan. Then, as he reached the bed, he saw that her gaze was fixed neither on him nor on Brant. It had no focus; it saw nothing. It was just a wide gaze of fear.

She was sitting stiffly upright with her hands pressed down upon the bed. Her short brown hair was wildly rumpled. Her face was of an agonizing pallor, her eyes all staring pupil. She had on a childish white nightgown, rather high at the neck, and beneath it her breast rose and fell with each sobbing breath. Jervis sat down on the edge of the bed and put a hand on her shoulder.

"Nan—what is it? Please don't be so frightened—you're all right. It was just a dream." She trembled, and he put his arm about her. "All right in a minute. Just hold on, and I'll go. Would you like a drink of water?" No, I won't go till you want me to.

She was small and light to hold. Another of those dreadful shudders passed over her. He felt her struggle with it, stifling herself against his arm until she was rigid. A sudden awkward tenderness for her fear came up in him. Under his impatient temperament he had a soft heart for children, animals—anything weak, defenceless, frightened. He patted her shoulder and tightened his grasp.

"Look here, there isn't anything to be afraid of. It was only a dream." She turned then, straining back against his arm so that she could look at him. "Did you—dream it—too?"

"No. Look here, it's nothing—a dream's nothing—it can't hurt anyone—you've only got to wake up. Here's Brant telling you the same thing. He's most awfully upset about you."

Brant had his forepaws on the bed again. The tip of his tail moved deprecatingly. He pushed his head forward and blew warm puffs of air at her hand, her arm. "Feeling better?" said Jervis. "What was it? Would you like to tell me?"

Leaning against his arm, and looking up at him with those unnaturally wide eyes, she said, "I thought—you were dead."

Her voice was the lost ghost of itself. He hardly heard the words; yet they reached him, releasing some emotion which he did not understand. He did not try to understand it, but it reinforced that odd tenderness.

"I thought—you were dead," said Nan. "Do I feel as if I were dead?" His arm tightened about her. "I saw you—in a dark place. You were—dead."

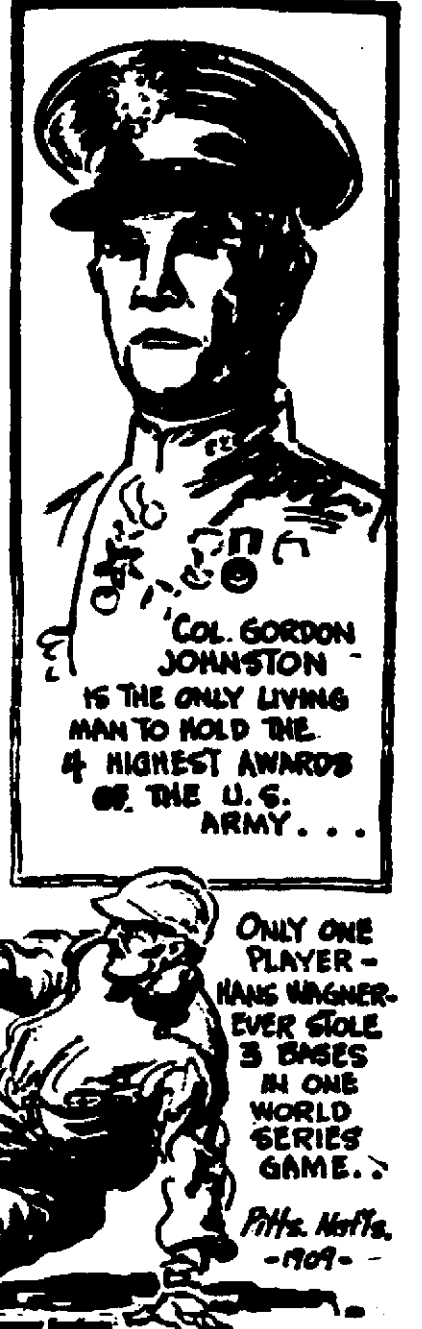

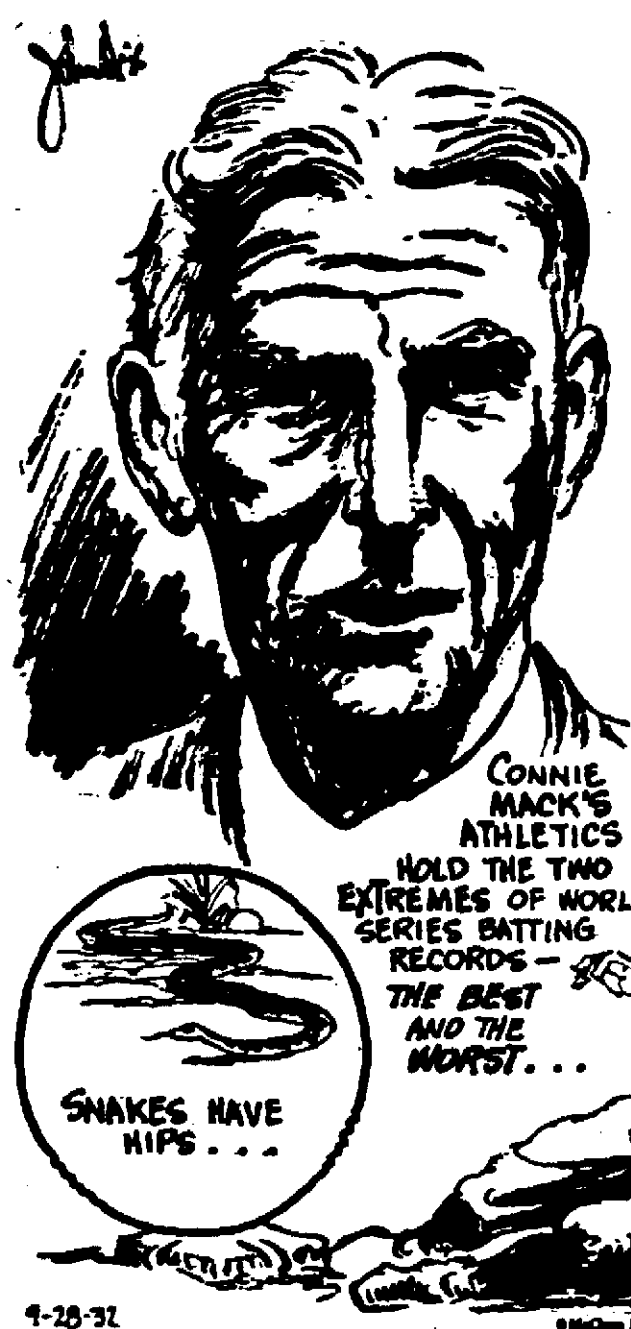

"Would you mind, Nan?" he asked softly. (Copyright, 1930, Lippincott) Out of the darkness, however, someone came to Jervis' rescue.

D. Trowbridge of New Falls spent Sunday with relatives in town. Mrs. Burton Ward visited relatives at Seville during the past week.

FABLOCK ASKED FOR MARRIAGE. New York, Sept. 27 (Special)—Charging violations of the prohibition laws, Assistant United States Attorney Earle N. Mahony filed papers in Federal Court here today seeking to close for one year the lunch room and bar occupying the ground floor of 235 Broadway avenue, Kingston. He terms the place a common saloon where liquor is peddled and sold. Angrie Quire is named to be the proprietor of the restaurant and Frances Koppke the owner of the building.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—JAN. 2. 1932. 1932

by John Hix

Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, who set an all-time record for poor world series hitting in 1905 when their batmen averaged .162, staged a great comeback five years later in the series to turn in the highest team average ever made in series baseball .317. The low record was made in Connie Mack's first year with the Athletics.

Others held by him are the Congressional medal, the Distinguished Service Medal, and the Distinguished Service Cross. The Purple Heart was awarded to Col. Johnston for his bravery in leading a charge against the Moros during the Philippine insurrection.

WEIGHT AND BLOOD PRESSURE

Controlling the weight, after middle life, keeping it within proper limits, is one of the most effective ways of preventing high blood pressure.

About 65 per cent of all people over 40 years of age and 10 pounds or more overweight have high blood pressure; that is, 2 of every 3.

Now there was a time when it was thought that in overweight people the processes did not work as fast or use up foods as rapidly as in those of normal weight. Tests show however that the processes in those who are overweight do not work any slower than in those of normal weight.

What does this mean?

It simply means that those who are overweight eat more food than they need.

Now these overweight individuals with high blood pressure look well and feed well, but the death rate is increased in proportion to the excess in weight; experience and insurance records teach that.

Of course heredity predisposes to overweight and high blood pressure, and this point must always be remembered.

Dr. V. C. Rowland, Cleveland, points out that a balanced reducing diet, intelligently supervised by a physician doing this special work, is the largest or best single factor in the control of certain types of high blood pressure and the symptoms which accompany it, such as indigestion, gall bladder disease and ulcer of the stomach and of first part of small intestine.

Treatment by diet in which foods poor instead of rich in food units is efficient and practicable.

The thought then is that as we approach middle age, we do less physical work, take less exercise than in our younger years, that we are now in a position to take things a little easier, mentally and physically, and have a little more money with which to purchase the rich foods, that we remember that considerable danger to health and happiness is at hand. We will put on weight and two out of three of us will have increased or high blood pressure, thus increasing the liability to the above mentioned ailments.

Cutting down on the food intake, as suggested by Dr. Rowland, is the simplest and most effective method of preventing overweight and high blood pressure.

County Landscaping Your Planned Friday

Some owners in Ulster county have succeeded, in spite of the lack of making flowers and plants grow where they had not before and more than 30 acres in the county are more beautiful because of the county wide landscaping contest.

Friday of this week a county tour will be made to the homes where the greatest improvements have been made.

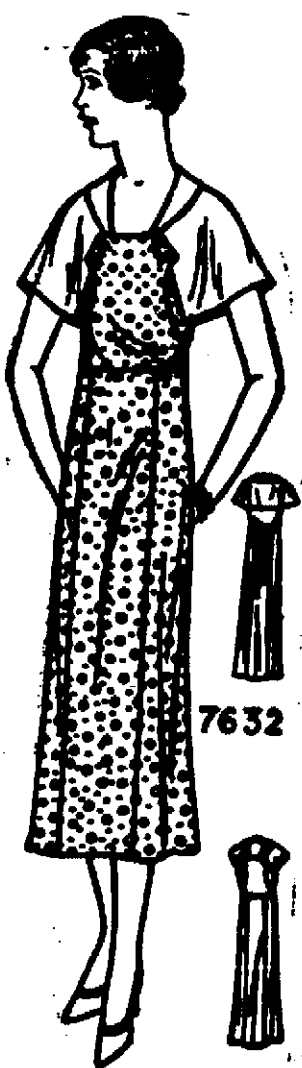

Professor Donald Bushey, landscaping specialist from Cornell University, will be in the county Wednesday and Thursday, judging the work at the various homes and will make the county wide tour Friday, pointing out improvements made.

National Winners in Tour
The home of Mr. and Mrs. George E. H. Smith, of Lomontville, winner of last year's national landscaping contest, will be visited on the tour. This will be a rare treat to people of Ulster county. The old colonial home in its new setting, so beautifully worked out by Mr. and Mrs. Smith, is a gem in natural beauty and will add much to the size of the tour.

Since the other homes to be visited cannot be announced until Prof. Bushey has completed the judging, the schedule for the tour cannot be given out until Friday morning.

Tour Meets at Edgewater Farm
Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hunt, of Edgewater Farm, Lomontville, have graciously offered their spacious grounds for all entering the tour to meet Friday morning. Here the schedule will be given out for the day. The meeting at Edgewater Farm is at 10:30 Friday morning. A large crowd is expected for the day's outing. Everyone brings lunch, which will be enjoyed by the large party at a convenient and pleasant picnic grounds along the way.

Fashions by Eleanor Gunn

Involving the Plot With Jewelry

New York—In order to keep one's interest in costume jewelry keyed to the proper pitch, it is necessary to introduce new motifs, also to evolve new ways of making costume jewelry essential to the smartly dressed woman.

The high built bodice, with its higher neckline has presented a problem to the manufacturer of this type of jewelry has caused some concern. One extremely interesting result is the "finger" collar, executed in beads. This is a worn collar shaped as a finger collar might be to fit the neck and having three pendants centering it in lieu of a jabot. Its just the sort of thing to flash the neck of a frock just now.

Ardance, the Paris dressmaker, employs a red leather necklace with a drape in the new carver shade. The necklace follows the outline of the bodice, one end hooking into its drapery with a metal hook, there being also bands of metal over the leather. Paris designers are finding effective uses for metal bars and other jewelry effects embodying them in the dress itself instead of being worn separately.

Higher necklines have renewed interest in brooches of the old fashioned, rather large type. Clips are still in favor but it is the larger ones that offer the most interesting possibilities.

Paton is winning military favor with huge ball buttons, in reality half balls. Jeweled and metal buttons and clasps, safety pins and such are also being used on hats as well as dresses.

Rhinestones contribute to the brilliant effects one wears after dark. Either rhinestones or crystals, or diamonds and rubies are the most frequently chosen ornaments.

Carneolite and amber are both used for day wear and there is some talk of a revival of turquoise.

A Muff—A "Must"

The furrow coat has been an impetus in the styling of both racoon and mink. Paton again is credited with doing much with this accessory, using lengthened diamond shapes in velvet or woolen, sometimes with fur banding or with trim of fabric at the sides. Paton's pillow muff of plaid or shirred fabric are used. Tiny mink slice muffs represent the smaller effects.

Kingston: "Skyraper South"

Here is a different kind of screen drama, a picture taken from the novel of Faith Baldwin that has a great story as its basis, and a sky-raper whose most of the action of the story takes place. It's the absorbing story of his business mixed with romance, and it is both unusual and good. The story is gorgeous, and the direction is flawless. Superlative acting by Warren William, Maurice O'Sullivan, Norman Foster, Jean Hersholt, Anita Page, and Vera Teasdale make this picture something worthwhile.

Orpheum: "Madame Racketeer" and "The Office Girl" Alton Skipling is the featured player in this laughable story of a lady racketeer who uses her talents to help her own daughter who does not know her. George Raft and Richard Bennett are also in the cast. "Office Girl" is a story of modern business with Renée Miller, Jack Mulberry and Morris Harvey.

Broadway: "Sinner's Midnight" on the stage, and "Tom Mix in 'Destry Rides Again'" on the screen. The famous Sinner's Midnight in a stage attraction of unusual entertainment value with a company of thirty people, reindeer, elephants, ponies, singing ducks, and a number of other features. This offering is a complete stage presentation in itself, with clowns, songs, dances, and circus stunts of all kinds. "Destry Rides Again" offers Tom Mix in a whirlwind western story that should appeal to both young and old. It is exciting from start to finish. The story concerns a certain Destry who is sent to prison wrongfully by his enemies, and when he gets out he spends his time getting revenge. Claudia Dell is also in the cast.

Tomorrow: Kingston: "Downstairs" John Gilbert, the greatest box office attraction in pictures until the arrival of the talkies, stakes a real comeback in this gay story he wrote himself, and it should do much toward bringing him back his waning popularity. In this show, Mr. Gilbert plays the part of a rogue instead of the customary hero. As a love-making chauffeur, he gets himself into all kinds of scrapes, from which he extricates himself with the ease and grace of a Casanova. Others in the supporting cast include Virginia Bruce and Paul Lukas.

Orpheum: "Sinner's Midnight" Broadway: "Okay America" The American newspaper columnist comes into glorification in this talkie, for although he is a scandal monger and a snoop, his personal charm and nerve win him admiration. It is exciting screen fare, fast moving and melodramatic from start to finish. Lew Ayres, as the chatty columnist who knows every night club and speakeasy in the city as well as the people who haunt them, plays his most engaging role in many months. He happens to bump into a kidnapping while on his beat, offers to act as the go-between, gets double crossed, and runs into a lot of excitement before everything turns out okay. Good entertainment. Maureen O'Sullivan plays the part of the girl in the story.

N.Y. Central To Open Shop In West Albany

New York, Sept. 28 (AP).—The New York Central Railroad, because of an improvement in traffic, today announced a tentative program of expanded operations in its car and locomotive shops, beginning October 1. The plan calls for the employment of about 4,000 men. Its continuance will depend upon the course of business.

Locomotive shops at Bucyrus, O.; Jackson, Mich.; St. Thomas, Ont.; West Albany, N. Y.; and Beech Grove, Ind., will be opened for the first time since July. Smaller forces will be put to work on light car repair jobs at scattered points, including Toledo, Ashabula and Buffalo.

Dutchess Musical Concert Programs

The Dutchess County Musical Association has announced its program for the eighteenth annual course of subscription concerts in Poughkeepsie High School Auditorium as follows: Wednesday, November 9, Philadelphia String Simphonietta; Wednesday, December 7, John Charles Thomas, baritone; Wednesday, January 18, Conchita Supercio, Spanish soprano; Wednesday, February 15, Russian Symphonic Choir; Wednesday, March 15, Josef Hofmann, pianist.

Editor of Newspaper Shot Calcutta, Sept. 28 (AP).—Sir Alfred Watson, editor of the Statesman, a daily newspaper, was shot and wounded today by a man who fired twice and fled. Doctors said he was in no danger. The first shot occurred in August, when he occupied a hotel. He has been threatened repeatedly by extremists who object to the policies of his paper.

Schumann Arrested Harry Schumann was arrested Tuesday at the White Horse Tavern, Eddyville, by investigators from the Kingston prohibition office. He was arraigned this morning before Commissioner Connolly, charged with sale and possession, and was held in $1,000 bail for appearance in district court. The agents also seized alleged apple and rye whiskey, gin, wine and beer.

Contentment and Reconciliation It is often more necessary to conceal contentment than resentment; the former being never forgotten, the latter sometimes being—Lord Chesterfield.

ROBIN STRAKER, known to all his many friends as Bin because he seemed always to have been everywhere, sat down for his breakfast of fragrant sausage and fried tomatoes which he had prepared himself. He liked getting his own breakfast. He had one or two funny little habits—perhaps one was the aftermath of the war.

Anyway Bin always spread down a fresh newspaper on his small table instead of a tea cloth—not necessarily to save laundry but simply because it was less trouble and always clean. As a matter of fact, Bin had acquired this one habit while, during the war and far out in No Man's Land, he might have had a moment during meal times to read the home papers and spread them out while consuming bully beef or other dainties of the soldier's life.

His breakfast now was a better affair altogether than those of war days, and while Bin enjoyed his sausage he idly scanned the columns of finely printed personalities that happened to be just alongside his cup.

"By Jove! That's funny," and Bin read again the personal that had called forth his ejaculation.

"Robin Straker; information wanted. Please communicate. 603 John Street, France."

Robin Straker knew, of course, that he was not the Straker mentioned in the advertisement, but he decided to look up the address at noon and see what was in the wind.

He finished his breakfast, gave the tiny kitchenette a hasty clean up and dashed off to business. At noon he presented himself to the address given and sat in his card.

A young lady entered and Robin Straker caught his breath. He was lastingly glad that he had the habit of spreading a newspaper down in place of a tea cloth—otherwise he might have missed one of the sweetest moments in life—that sudden, glorious moment when the One Girl arrives.

This young lady was, however, not struck in the same way. Her manner was icy—so icy that Straker wondered if he had suddenly wandered against the North pole.

"So you are Robin Straker, are you?" the fair one asked frigidly.

"I am," said Robin, "but not—"

"And why have you chosen to hide all these years instead of facing things like a man. France has been searching for you for ten years—it's been a cowardly, hateful way to treat a girl—marry her and then desert her."

"I'm—hold on," put in Straker, finally getting a word in through the ice-bound regions. "You're making a mistake. I'm not the Robin Straker you're so flattered to—"

The girl's face swiftly changed and her eyes opened wide.

"Then what are you here for?" she demanded.

"I say—you little Spitfire—if you happened to see your own name in the paper and had some information that might help those seeking your name, would you or would you not answer the appeal?"

"Well—if you're not the Robin Straker we're looking for why didn't you say so in the beginning?"

"I didn't get a look in," said Bin and grinned. "You had such a pile of flattering remarks to hurl at me that I couldn't get a word in edgewise."

"I'm very sorry," she said, "and now that I've talked so much—you can start in."

"As a matter of fact," said Robin, "I saw the picture of the man you are looking for—me just in the nick of time—with his last breath. There was a bit of a brawl in Mexico—in 1920, I think it was, and he—Bob Straker—shot himself—he was—"

Bin thought better than to say just what the man was.

"You might just as well say it," said Polly. "He married my cousin, deserted her after a few months and never even had the decency to let her know whether he was dead or alive. She wants now to marry again and I was making an effort to ascertain for absolute certainty that she is free. I had never seen this Robin Straker and naturally didn't know."

"You need not apologize any more," said Bin, "but don't you think considering you said such frightful things to me—the very moment I appeared in sight, that you'd better stone by making my lunch hour less lonely? Besides," he hastened to add so as not to have a natural hesitation in Polly's desire to stone to just that way. "There is much I must tell you if your cousin is to be certain that she is free. Remember—to one but myself, perhaps, was witness to the actual passing of one Robin Straker." He looked hard at Polly and added with a half grin, "You see I can almost bar this marriage of your cousin—if I am not treated right."

Polly laughed, and Bin felt to wondering if she would sometimes laugh that way when they were having breakfast on a newspaper—and he somehow felt that she would.

As a matter of fact, they had their first breakfast when they returned from their honeymoon—on a spread out newspaper and there were fragrant sausages and fried tomatoes of Robin's cooking and Polly did laugh—for they were very happy.

Condition Unchanged. London, Sept. 28 (AP).—There was no change this morning in the condition of Winston Churchill, British statesman. It was said at the hospital where he was taken after he suffered a rupture from an attack of pneumonia with which he was seized at Ashbury, Austria, recently.

News of Today In Kingston

Local print shops may be interested to know that the $355,000 city bond issue recently sold by the city treasurer of Kingston were from a print shop in New Jersey. The print shop pays its taxes in New Jersey, and likely the Carey administration decided to help them pay their taxes by sending them a job that could have been done equally well by local concerns who have to pay taxes here.

One of the most dangerous street intersections in the city is that of East Strand and Hasbrouck avenue. There is heavy traffic over both Hasbrouck avenue and the Strand and there have been a number of near accidents at that intersection. The city authorities should devote some time to studying just what means should be taken to make this corner safer for motorists, either by installing a stop and go signal device or placing caution signs where they could be easily seen.

The airplane at Huling Amusement Park has been going for some months and its popularity seems to grow by the day. Without a doubt the plane fever has spread rapidly, and it is responsible for the records broken by this new device that gives you the same thrill as if you were flying your own plane. Night after night crowds wait and pay to use the plane. It took away nearly all the players from miniature golf and turned them into aviators, and you folks who are thinking about taking up aviation should get a dose of this first; it might change your mind before it's too late. You get tossed around plenty if you wriggle the stick much and feel as lost as a bedbug in a wrinkled blanket.

Hunt for Bombers Of Thayer Home

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 28 (AP).—The hopes of Massachusetts' man-hunters for the swift apprehension of those who bombed the home of Judge Webster Thayer rested today in a small piece of copper found in the bedroom of a nearby house.

The fragment of metal had been hurled across the street from the Thayer home, through the wall and into the center of a bedroom of a house.

William P. Fineran, superintendent of Worcester detectives, believed it to be a part of the bomb that wrecked the Thayer home early yesterday. He based his belief on the theory that since the metal fragment had been thrown with more force than other particles found in the neighborhood, it must have been part of the bomb.

Captain Charles J. Van Amburgh, state explosives expert believed it probable that dynamite was used but was unwilling to make any definite statement on the cause of the explosion until he had completed his investigation.

Meanwhile police throughout the east were asked to watch for "two swarthy complexioned men in an automobile carrying New York registration plates." The car was seen in front of the judge's house shortly before the explosion and a neighbor of Judge Thayer said its two occupants left the scene hurriedly just before he heard the blast.

Many of the investigation officials went back to the days of the Sacco-Vanzetti trial in their search for a motive. Judge Thayer presided over the trial of the two radicals, who were executed in Massachusetts state prison in August 1927.

Many Matters Face County Judge Traver

County Judge Frederick G. Traver found many matters ready for disposition at the opening of court this morning. There was the Joy-Hulshair matter still on trial, an application was made to open a default taken in justice's court, several orders to be signed and two incompetency applications. At the morning session three juries were busy at one time. The jury in the Joy-Hulshair action took a recess after one witness had been sworn while another jury was called in an incompetency action. After testimony had been concluded in that action and the jury had retired a third jury was called and testimony was taken in a second incompetency action.

The Joy-Hulshair contract action was then resumed.

VICE-PRESIDENT CURTIS ENROUTE TO OKLAHOMA

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—Vice-President Charles Curtis is enroute to Oklahoma today, leaving behind in West Virginia a prediction that America "will be the first to recover from the depression under the leadership of President Hoover."

Closing a two-day stump of the Mountaineer State, Curtis last night said there had been 19 periods of depression in the United States in the last 125 years but that the nation "counted out each depression more powerfully than ever."

He declared "a competitive tariff for revenue" advocated by the Democratic platform and Governor Roosevelt, "will not help a single working man, farmer, mine or factory in the United States."

Flaming Trap Shooter Dead. Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 28 (AP).—Harry Harrison, former leader of the Canadian trap shooting title and a member a few years ago of the Grand American Forestry Handicap Shoot, died at his home here last night. He was 54. He was a former holder of the world's record for rapid rifle fire.

Interest in Universal Language Not Lasting

John H. Schlayer invented a universal language in 1929 which he called Volapuk, meaning world-speech. He taught it in Paris in 1930. It created much interest and for a time was used in commercial correspondence. Its adoption in diplomacy and science was urged but it failed to last and now is a thing of the past.

Its roots are principally borrowed from the Latin, German and English. The orthography is strictly phonetic. The alphabet had 27 letters, 5 vowels and 19 consonants. Each letter had but one sound. Consonants were sounded as in English except the letters c and j; c was hard and h aspirate. The accent was invariably on the last syllable. There was only one conjugation and no irregular verbs. All the word forms and inflections were regular. The letter v became w, and the letter l was substituted for the letter e. Almost all the words were one syllable. Nouns had one declension and four cases. Adjectives were formed by adding it to the substantive, and adverbs by adding the letter o to the adjective. For example the word fan, which in Volapuk was glory; famik, glorious; and famike, gloriously.

Period of Pueblo Home Revealed by Tree Rings

An ancient tragedy resulted in the discovery by a Smithsonian Institution expedition of what is probably the oldest known inhabited site north of Mexico which can be positively dated, says the Pathfinder Magazine. More than 1,000 years ago an early American family fled from its burning home and lost everything. The fire which destroyed the home for the family preserved it for posterity. Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts, Jr., Smithsonian archeologist, found the charred remains of the home while excavating an ancient site on a low mesa overlooking the Puerco river valley in eastern Arizona. The flames caused the roof to cave in, piling down all the household equipment, including clay pots and corn grinding utensils, just as the family had left them. Some of the timbers, the archeologist reported, were charred but not destroyed and thus preserved from rotting. The ancient tree rings on these timbers are still clear. By checking them with the Douglas tree-ring calendar the building was dated exactly at 700 A. D. This old structure was of the pit house type and dates from the Pueblo I period.

Looks Bad, Smells Bad

An Algerian centipede, recently received at the London zoo, is a horrid-looking creature, nearly 6 inches in length, with a narrow, worm-like body divided into about 10 or 12 rings, or portions, to each of which is attached a pair of legs of bright orange-yellow. It has two small black horns on its head. Not only has the centipede more than 20 legs, each one of which leaves a poisonous trail behind it as it passes over human skin, but it is also armed with fangs just as sharp as those of the scorpion. If it is attacked this horrid creature puts out an evil-smelling fluid as a protection. In the tropics centipedes grow much bigger, and are as dangerous as certain poisonous snakes.

Screech Owl's "Spell"

In neglected orchards, and often close to the cities, you will find the screech owl. It rarely struts abroad before dark, being a nocturnal bird, whose silent ghostly flight may account somewhat for the superstitions that surround it. In Louisiana, folks call it the shivering owl, and in Mississippi, the superstitious among the darkies turn their pockets inside out to avert its evil spell when they hear its quivering voice. In South Carolina a piece of iron is tossed into the fire to effect the same release from the "spell."

Dormouse a European Although the white-footed mouse of the United States is sometimes termed the dormouse, the true dormouse are inhabitants only of the Old world. The dormouse is a sort of cross between the real mouse and the squirrel. It seems to have characteristics of both. It usually lives in trees and bushes and feeds freely on berries and nuts. It is thoughtful of the future, like the squirrel, and lays up a good store of food for the winter and then curls up to sleep during the cold months. On warm days during the winter the dormouse wakes up, eats a bit and then goes back to sleep.

Girls Some girls are like angel food cake—a little bit of coarseness pulled to their securing proportions by the good old principle of the expansion of hot air. With either, if there is the least slip in the making we have no use for the result, but if done so the proper turn we secure the lack of substance because of the smooth, delicate surface.—Indianapolis News.

"Answered" In general, the term American Indian was frequently abbreviated to Indian and this led to confusion with the Indian who is inhabitant of the East Indies. So to designate the American Indian the bureau of American ethnology authorized the word Amerind or Amerindian which is a combination of the two words American and Indian.

Fatal Plane Took Off From Palenville

The aeroplane which crashed near Ancram, Columbia county, Tuesday, killing two occupants, had taken off at Palenville enroute to Schoenectady. Joseph Kowalski, 24, mechanic, was enroute to his home in Schoenectady and G. D. Matpie, 23, of Brooklyn, was the pilot. Investigation by a department of commerce inspector disclosed that the plane had taken off from the Catskill mountain town to take Kowalski to visit his mother at Schoenectady. The plane was observed near Ancram, its motor sputtering, and later it was located with its nose buried in the ground by a school boy. Both occupants were dead. The pilot had turned off his ignition before landing. Hatpie had been flying at Palenville. Last Sunday his plane nosed over, breaking its propeller and only Monday he had secured a new one at Floyd Bennett Field, according to his mother who learned of the accident when her son called before returning to Palenville. Indications point to a forced landing due to fog.

WILL TRY TO FADE DREWS OF MONTGOMERY WARD CO.

A practical demonstration of the non-fading qualities of Montgomery Ward house dresses will be given at the local store Thursday. A colored mammy will do her best to fade the dresses by continuous washing in a washer in the window of the store from 11 to 1 and from 2 to 4. The contest between Mammy Lou and the Montgomery Ward dresses will be open to the public and all are invited to come and see the fun.

Benny Costa Bailed Out

Benny Costa of Henry street, indicted as Cosimo Aldala by the Orange county grand jury, was released from the Newburgh court house jail Monday night under $5,000 bail on an indictment charging malicious mischief. He is allowed to have planted a bomb in the Funk plant in Newburgh. Bondsmen are Mrs. Gertrude Copens and Mrs. Josephine Pizzo, both of Newburgh. Costa must appear in Newburgh for arraignment on Saturday.

Watson Finds $5,000.

Miss Madeline Blackburn of Beacon, a waitress in the Johnson restaurant on Water street, Newburgh, found in the restaurant on Monday morning a pocketbook containing $5,000—three $1,000 bills and the rest in currency. The pocketbook was later claimed by an unnamed woman who thanked the finder and walked out of the restaurant without offering the waitress a penny reward.

WHAT'S NEW FOR

In Coats—

A high upstanding collar or a wide collar that accents the shoulder line... a capelet or detachable fur collar... fur sleeve treatments above or up to the elbow... squared shoulders and high, molded waistline.

In Dresses—

A black sheer wool with crisp little finger details... a setin and wool combination with broad shoulder treatment and new wider waistline... a crinkly crepe with smart color contrast touches.

In the Fabrics Themselves—

Opaque crepes which look like wool... a crinkly crepe... dull velvet... two-tone velvet which gives a rich off-black tone... and new novelty-weave sheer wools.

These are but a few of the ideas in store for you in our fall collection... and even such luxury fashions as these sound are way down in price as compared with other years.

Roman Senate

Roman was the first to organize a senate in Rome. He selected 100 patricians for his advisers. (The original meaning of senate is a council of old men, so called because it was an assembly composed of the heads of families.) Under the republic of Rome the senate was composed of 300 patricians, plebeians and high officials.

Julius Caesar raised the number of the senators to 600. Augustus reduced it to 300. Ultimately nearly all the senators were elected by vote of the people. Senators held office for life, unless removed because of dishonesty; but the office was not hereditary.

Walker Won't Fight Till Punch Drunk, Rates Max as Good

"You're never going to see me walking on my heels," said Mickey Walker to a group of newspaper men following his recent defeat by Max Baer. "I'm not going to fight until I'm punch drunk. I'll take the best punch I can get and I'll be a good fighter."

Walker made a contradiction of reports on the battle of Monday night, saying: "The punch with which he knocked me down is the first round was a left hook, though I see all the experts say it was a right hand. And the only reason it knocked me down was because it was a left hook. I was expecting a right, and Schmelling crossed me up. I think it was the only hook he used throughout the fight."

Mickey laughed over the incident of Jack Dempsey climbing into the ring and walking over to Jack Kearns to shake his hand. It was the first time the two had shaken since they parted in 1925. Dempsey didn't say anything to Kearns, who was so surprised that he probably couldn't have answered, according to Walker.

OPTIMISTIC LESSON

First lesson in cheerfulness, by the Tifton Gazette man:

"Suppose that everyone you know was always gloomy, grim and blue, and no one ever undertook to give a cheerful word or look."

"Suppose that people everywhere were downed by every war and care, and didn't ever laugh or smile, but simply grumbled all the while."

"Or what if there was no one here who ever spread a bit of cheer, or if we really never heard a pleasant or a cheerful word."

"The answer is, with such the case, this world would be a gloomy place."

It Pays to Advertise

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Stocks continued to be early trading today.

Gains of 1 point or so were made by Santa Fe, American Can, Hartford, Case, Northern Pacific, Westinghouse and Westinghouse, American Telephone & Telegraph, New York Central, Union Pacific and Southern Railway.

There were a few soft spots, but most of them were easily recovered. The market was down more than a point after a fractional decline, and rallied for a moderate net gain, with volume dried up.

The money market figures registered another gain, amounting in the week ended September 24 to 14.41 per cent. Treasury bills, or from 1.475, 442,000 to 1.496, 563,000.

Since the end of July, output has increased more substantially than in the corresponding periods of the last three years.

A further moderate increase in steel production was reported by "Iron Age." Output stood at 1,171,000 tons, or 117 per cent of capacity.

Against 100 last week and the 1932 mark of 12 per cent on July 7, a figure that set a record low.

Since July 7, there has been an increase of 16 per cent in operating activity, although this percentage increase, starting from such a low level of activity, still leaves much to be desired from the standpoint of the trade.

Moderate further gains through October and November were forecast, and "Iron Age" stated that "major industries are expected to become more of a factor in the steel market within the next 30 to 60 days."

The announcement of formation of a non-partisan committee to study railroad problems with a view to recommending helpful legislation, expected for some time, was hailed with satisfaction by railroad men and bankers, but the market had no opportunity to discount the news.

DAIRY FACTS

OUTLOOK NOT GOOD FOR DAIRY FARMER

Unprofitable Conditions in Deficit Feed Areas.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Animal Industry.

Increased production of dairy products this fall and winter as a result of relatively large numbers of cows on farms and prices of feed grains in relation to dairy products, increased fall production, and prospective increases in feed supplies, is to be expected.

The bureau of agricultural economics says that unless the decrease in consumer incomes is checked, the ratio between prices of feed and prices of dairy products will probably be even less favorable for dairymen in deficit feed areas than for the last two seasons. In surplus feed areas, however, the ratio, it is expected, will be more favorable. Prices of fluid milk have declined during the last year at about the same rate as have prices of manufactured dairy products, but the bureau points out that base prices for fluid milk are still relatively higher than wholesale prices of the manufactured products.

The number of milk cows on farms has continued to increase during the first half of 1932 at a more rapid rate than in the same months of 1931, but it is expected that the present rate of increase will not continue because the numbers of heifers being raised has begun to decline. Poor pastures, local feed shortages, a higher percentage of low-producing cows in herds, and a marked shift toward fall freshening are stated as reasons why total milk production the first half of 1932 was somewhat lighter than for the same period in 1931, despite an increased number of cows.

Color Indicator Shows

Abnormalities in Cows

Cows that have larger produce milk that is less acid than that from normal, healthy udders. Frequently it is possible to detect the presence of the disease by means of a color indicator. Tests at Ohio State university with bromthymol blue, sometimes called "Thymol," have shown that abnormalities can be detected. When one cubic centimeter of this indicator solution is added to five cubic centimeters of normal fresh milk, the color obtained will be greenish-yellow or yellowish-green. When milk is too acid, it becomes a distinct yellow; but if milk is too alkaline, as is usually the case in garget, the color will be intensely green, dark green or blue-green. In making the test each quarter is tested separately. After the first four streams are milked into a strip cup or other container, five cubic centimeters of milk are drawn into a test tube and the indicator added directly to it. The color develops at once.

Milk from fresh cows or from cows nearly dry is not suitable for this test.—Prairie Farmer.

Sees Value of Milk Tests

The milk test association idea has never seemed to "take hold" in Canada. Many associations have been organized but few of them have been long lived. The cost of maintaining a tester for each unit of 36 herds seemed to be the great stumbling block. In the United States, on the other hand, such associations are now numbered by the thousands and the number is still increasing. Last year there were 85 such associations in Pennsylvania and 36,004 cows were under test. The average production of milk per cow was 5,081 pounds and $12.5 pounds butterfat. This is the second year that the average milk production has exceeded 5,000 pounds and the fifth consecutive year that the average butterfat has exceeded 900 pounds. No dairy farmer will need to be told that this is an exceptional good showing. It is results such as this that have made for the improvement associations a secure place in the estimation of United States farmers.—Montreal Family Herald.

DAIRY NOTES

Fires are a serious pest around a stable or a milkhouse. Screened windows and darkened interiors will help to keep them outside.

Thirteen Holstein cows in the United States produced in excess of 50,000 pounds of milk in 1931, bringing the total to 127 cows that have reached this goal. The list is headed by May DeKok Francis, located in Massachusetts, with a record of 1,120 pounds of butterfat and 24,448 pounds of milk in one year.

A herd of eight brown Swiss cows owned by E. J. Hiller led in the Tuxedo No. 2 Dairy herd improvement association for June with an average of 1,000 pounds of milk and 41 pounds of butterfat.

New York state dairymen in 38 of the 74 dairy herd improvement associations disposed of 991 cows to April. Low production was the main reason for selling 191 cows; 69 cows were sold for use in other herds, 23 died, and 20 had udder trouble.

Important Function

Correlation is perhaps the most important function of science, making our multifarious knowledge mentally manageable, enlarging the field of actual and potential experience, and revealing a unity in experiences which are superficially quite distinct.

YOUR HOME and YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

DUTCH TREAT HOUSE PARTY

I SUPPOSE some of the accepted rules on etiquette have anything to say concerning the Dutch treat party I have in mind, but it is a type of group entertaining that is becoming more and more popular and that makes special appeal to us during warm weather. Very few women in moderate circumstances could afford to give a week-end house party for ten or eleven guests and yet there are many women whose social horizons or mountain shacks would in a tight pinch accommodate that many guests.

The way to go about the Dutch treat house party is this: The hostess with the room to accommodate a number of guests simply sets her house in order and invites the guests, who come bringing shoes, towels and possibly blankets if the hostess' supply is not adequate. Some one other than the hostess assumes the responsibility for apportioning the refreshments, based on menus drawn up with the hostess. Mrs. Brown brings a roast chicken and a pound of coffee, condensed milk and a package of crackers. Mrs. Smith is taxed one watermelon, two dozen rolls and a homemade cake which the bachelor of the party is called upon to provide candies and nutmegs. As a usual thing the apportionments are such that costs are fairly evenly divided, and the hostess' list includes butter and fresh milk and other things that are best ordered from local stores.

Often there is an additional per capita of a dollar or less to pay for glass, ale, ice, paper napkins, paper plates, etc. The old-fashioned hostess might have drawn back at the idea of permitting house guests to share expenses in this way but when once we get over such prejudices we find that house parties and supper parties of a rather elaborate sort are possible all through the summer and fall at a minimum cost in time and money to all concerned.

UNUSUAL BUTTERS

"HUNGER is the best sauce," we all know, and good sweet bread and butter is always a feast for the hungry. But for appetite that helps stimulating, these butters will help the tickling of the palate:

Herb Butter.

Mix one-half cupful of butter with one teaspoonful of chopped fresh parsley, one-half teaspoonful of powdered savory, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of white pepper. Keep in a cool place. Nice served over lamb chops or steak.

Pimento Butter.

Mash to a pulp four pimentos, then press through a sieve, add one-half cupful butter and one-half green pepper finely minced. Mix and use as needed.

Horseshoe Butter.

Take one-half cupful of fresh butter and add one tablespoonful of fresh grated horseradish. Mix well with a fork and add one tablespoonful of minced parsley. Put into a jar and keep in a cool place. This is very good with fish.

Green Butter.

Take a small green onion, four sprigs of parsley, two branches of pepper grass or water-cress, one-half cupful of butter, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt and one-half teaspoonful of cayenne pepper. Mix well all but the butter, then add the butter and mix again and pass through a sieve into a bowl. Place in a cool place until required for use.

Cheese Butter.

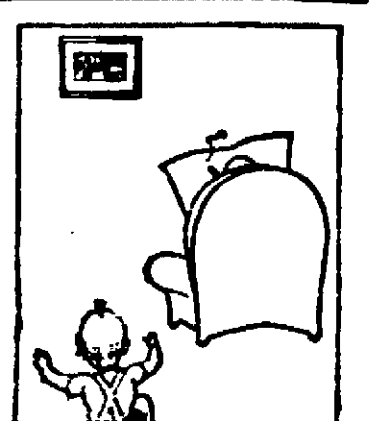

Take one-half cupful of butter, two teaspoonfuls of ground mustard, two teaspoonfuls of vinegar, two teaspoonfuls of Worcestershire sauce, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of cayenne, two hard-boiled egg yolks; mash the yolks and mix well all the ingredients together.

Bacon or Ham Butter.

Fry this slice of lean ham or bacon, drain and pound to a paste on a meat board or in a mortar. Add enough butter to make a smooth paste. To two tablespoonfuls of the paste add one teaspoonful of horseradish or mustard.

Old English Trade Term

"Deal wood," coming into use for woodcutting in the eighteenth century in England, came from Dutch and the Dutch word for wood is 'hout'.

The name deal is referred to the firm in which the wood was imported rather than the wood.

World Series Opens After Morning Rain

For speed ball pitching. Bush was setting a nice break with his curve ball as he warmed up with Zack Taylor.

The Yankees scrambled out on the field shortly before 1:45 p. m. The sun was out brightly again, when the band struck up the National Anthem. The following play by play descriptive of the first world series game is by Alan J. Gould, Associated Press sports editor.

First inning, Cubs:

The rival managers had an extended conference with the umpires at the plate.

Herman up. Manager Grimm and Coach Art Fletcher of the Yankees came out for another confab with the chief umpire.

Ball one, inside. Foul, strike one, down the third base line. Ball two, outside. Herman singled over second base.

English up. Ball one, high and inside. Ball two, low and outside. Strike one, called. Foul, strike two, into the screen behind the plate. Ball three, high. Foul into the stands. Kias Drills Boys On Unbalanced Line

The failure to shift on the defense to meet the strong side of Montrell's offensive line Saturday, led to Coach Kias' instructions on this phase of the game yesterday afternoon on the Athletic Field that took up the greater part of the time. This was the greatest failure and the race of the afternoon on the biggest mistake of the afternoon on the part of the Maroon in their 1932 opener.

Each year the popularity of the unbalanced line increases. In high school football, and the teams that play it have great success. It is the team themselves, are good. Montrell made substantial gains through the line in the early minutes of play, because Kingston failed to shift on the defense to meet the play on the strong side. The advantage led to Montrell's strong side over-powering Kingston's line like a steam roller. The mountain team was using the power play and at the time it started out, it would have killed Kingston by as equally as large as a score as Kingston trimmed the mountain eleven.

Besides this work on the line in regards to the defense, Kias stressed the points on offense, blocking and giving interference. He also gave a short talk on the proper use of hands on defense which is one of the outstanding rules to be enforced this year. Of course, slugging was always illegal but yet it was common and this rule will find it hard to stop. Then the backs received their drill on handling the ball and where to find the openings on the plays. In general the team got a good going over on the signals but there is still plenty of work to be done in this line. Kias expects to have the first string eleven working like a well-oiled machine before the Schenectady game.

Although the tackling and blocking were two of the best things done by the boys in their game Saturday, Kias gave them more drill to keep them that way and tried to perfect the art where it was possible. All in all the Maroon eleven is on the straight road to a big season.

Baer or Carnera May Meet Schmeling

Elated over his showing against Nicker Walker, whom he stopped in eight rounds, Max Schmeling seriously considers an offer to box an outstanding heavyweight at the New York American Christmas Fund Show, scheduled for Madison Square Garden early in December. It is thought that Max Baer or Primo Carnera may oppose the German.

Joe Jacobs, his manager, has arranged passage for Schmeling on the S. S. Bremen, which sails for Germany on Saturday, but he said Max is willing to return in November if a Christmas Fund bout is arranged. Max demands that whoever boxes him the prospective match must be satisfied with the challenger's end in the payoff. The German got the lion's share in the Walker match.

Europeans Consider Vines Best Player

New York, Sept. 28 (AP).—European tennis commentators have become convinced that the world's best player is no longer Henri Cochet of France but Ellsworth Vines of the United States.

Vines, who defeated Cochet twice this year—in the Davis Cup challenge round and the American championships—is ranked No. 1 both by A. Wallis Myers, tennis authority for the London Daily Telegraph, and by the Paris newspaper, "L'Auto."

Cochet is placed in the No. 2 spot by both.

TWENTY FANS WAIT ALL NIGHT AT YANKEE STADIUM

New York, Sept. 28 (AP).—Forty-seven persons were standing in a light rain at the bleacher entrance to the Yankee Stadium at 7 a. m. today awaiting a chance to buy tickets for the opening of the world series.

Twenty of the prospective customers had waited all night, occasionally seeking shelter from intermittent showers in a garage across the street.

Bill Cunningham, of Kansas City, held down first position at entrance "A" to the bleachers. He said he had kept a week-long vigil and expected to be the first to purchase a ticket when the office opened at 10 o'clock. He slept on two automobile cushions and protected himself from the rain with an umbrella.

Last year, with the weather clear, thousands were in line for the first game by 7 a. m.

SPORT SLANTS

Leslie Warneke has done a great deal of work on the mound for the Chicago Cubs this year. In fact the afternoon on the Athletic Field that took up the greater part of the time. This was the greatest failure and the race of the afternoon on the biggest mistake of the afternoon on the part of the Maroon in their 1932 opener.

Nevertheless precedent and circumstances will make it extremely risky for Manager Charles Grimm, school football, and the teams that play it have great success. It is the team themselves, are good. Plans Progress for New Golf Course

Plans are rapidly taking form for the new public golf course to be located between Lucas avenue and the Hurley road, and with the certain membership now at 75, 23 of which have been secured within the last week, the prospects of having another golf course in Kingston are exceedingly bright, according to

Thomas C. Goodwin, golf course designer and professional, who has been retained by a group of local men interested in the new course. "Now that golf is recognized as a popular sport, almost a national pastime, with multitudes playing the game wherever it is possible, it will be years before there are enough courses to satisfy the demands of golfers," said Mr. Goodwin. "Until the depression hit us almost every good course had a waiting list for membership, and even with the inroads of the depression golf courses are becoming more popular every day. Realizing that Kingston has no public golf course, a number of local men have interested themselves in this project with the idea in mind of establishing a course for everyone to use. Anyone interested in this new golf course may get in touch with me at the former Chamber of Commerce rooms in the Governor Clinton Hotel," he concluded. If sufficient funds are subscribed this fall, work will begin at once on the course, and nine of the 18 holes will be ready for play in the spring, announced Mr. Goodwin. He said the new course will have several water holes and that the location is ideal for play with natural hazards, and all the thrills that may be found on a course.

—By Pap Series Rivals Face Financial Setback

By EDWARD J. NEIL

New York, Sept. 28 (AP).—Clouds of an even deeper gray than those forecast by the weather man, dulled baseball's most glamorous picture today—the opening game of another world series.

Barring the wildest sort of a last minute flood of enthusiasm the New York Yankees and the Chicago Cubs faced the entirely unexpected threat of a possible financial depression.

Never before in the history of six previous Yankee world series have Broadway and the far reaching caverns of Manhattan failed to produce whooping enthusiasm, and crowds to throng the American League ball park.

But today, with burly "Honus the Red" Ruffing primed to hurl his fireball against the cocky Cubs, with Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, the siege guns, perfectly trained on Chicago's lanky Guy Bush, the ball park primed and draped in bunting, even the braves of the Seventh Regiment stood poised to a sufficient rivals the second man when one, either the Yankees or the Cubs, to have taken place.

The prospect was for a crowd of more than 25,000 to 40,000, depending chiefly on a change from the gloomy rainy weather of yesterday, and the avidness of the fans for the 12,000 unreserved stand seats at $1.50 each, and $2.10 bleacher seating places. Even though the forecast of weather bureau was for a show day, with no clearing before afternoon, a crowd of 40,000 at Yankee world series opening, backed by the promise of Speaker J. N. Garner, Democratic candidate Vice President, and a solid phalanx of notables from all walks of life, was a far cry from the record attendance of 62,000 and receipts of $22,120 set at the Yankee Stadium.

There is a partial exhibit of 42 United States flags since June 1877, in the Arts and Industries building of the United States National Museum in Washington, D. C. The United States Navy department also has a valuable collection, but the flags this one antedate rather than follow the year 1877.
